Forgiveness is a Choice

What do you do when someone says they're sorry? The same thing you do even if they don't say they're sorry. You forgive them.

Forgiveness isn't about the other person; it's about you. Holding a grudge only holds us hostage to the wrongs of others.

Forgiveness is a choice, not a feeling. Few people feel like forgiving when someone has hurt them, but dwelling on it only makes things worse.

The first step in moving forward is to decide to forgive—even if the offending party hasn't acknowledged their wrongdoing.

And forgiveness doesn't mean you forget the transgression, just that you choose to no longer hold it against the other person.

You give up the right to nurse a grudge, or to use the episode against the offender.

So when someone says they're sorry—or even when they don't—learn to forgive. You will feel better and be happier!!
