What Are Friends For?

So what are friends for? More than you might imagine.

Everyone should have at least one good friend in their life, but several is better. Friends provide many things we all need.

Like perspective. A friend can help us see things in a different light. We all have days where we feel lost and confused, and a good friend can provide fresh ideas and an approach we may not have considered.

Friends also provide company and comfort—especially when things aren't going our way. When we need someone to laugh or cry with, a good friend is always there with a willing ear and a dry shoulder.

And friends provide accountability. They keep us in line when we veer off course, and can even help us during times of crisis. When we fall, they're always there to pick us back up.

LEARNING SUPPORT TEACHING

As part of whole school learning support, specific standardised tests and screener tests are administered throughout the year based on Classroom Teacher referral. The information gathered from these assessments is confidential and is used to monitor student progress and to assist in planning. If results indicate that further professional assessment is required, parents will be consulted.
